Mortgage Apps Finally Feeling Effects of Higher Rates

Mortgage application volumes suffered their worst losses of 2018 last week. The Mortgage Bankers Association (MBA) said both purchase mortgages and applications for refinancing were down significantly during the week ended February 16 compared to the prior week.

MBA's Market Composite Index, a measure of application volume, was fell by 6.6 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis from the week ended February 9. It was the largest one-week decline since mid-September. The unadjusted composite was 3 percent lower.

The Refinance Index lost 7 percent from a week earlier and the share of applications for refinancing declined to 44.4 percent, more than 2 percentage points below the prior week and the smallest portion since last July.

The seasonally adjusted Purchase Index fared only slightly better, falling 6 percent from the previous week. The unadjusted index managed a 1 percent increase and was 3 percent higher than the same week one year ago.

Both the FHA and the VA share of total applications continued to shrink. The former fell below 10 percent for the first time in recent memory, to 9.9 percent while the VA share dipped to 10.0 percent from 10.1 percent. The USDA share was unchanged at 0.8.

Contract mortgage rates for fixed-rate products continued to set new multi-year highs. Effective rates also moved higher. The average contract interest rate for 30-year fixed-rate mortgages (FRM) with conforming loan balances of $453,100 or less rose to the highest level since January 2014, 4.64 percent, up from 4.57 percent the previous week. Points increased to 0.61 from 0.59.

The rate for jumbo 30-year fixed-rate mortgages, loans with balances greater than the $453,100 conforming loan limit, also finished higher than at any point since January 2014. The contract rate increased to 4.62 percent, from 4.55 percent, while points rose to 0.50 from 0.47.
